PROGRAM HIGHLIGHTS

Presidio Youth in Nature Programs provide environmental education, leadership development and community service opportunities for youth through 3 programmatic areas: one-day introductions through Point of Inquiry, school-based clubs through Earth Service Corps, and weeklong summer intensives through Let's Move Outside. The goals of PYNP are to provide youth with first time exposure and education on environmental issues, increase knowledge that the Presidio is part of a National Park, and increase knowledge of what youth can do to take care of the environment. PYNP serves 650 youth each year. 85% of youth participants are low income, 90% are youth of color, 20% are English language-learners, and 10% are in special education programs.

"Through Earth Service Corps I've learned to be a leader that can help make a change for the better."
